

A Canyon Junior High School teacher explains a homework assignment to her students during classes which began last week here. A record number of students are expected to attend Canyon schools this year.

Vacant classrooms are being cleaned and readied for the fall onslaught at West Texas State University. Students are due to enroll next weekend, but many will begin arriving early this week as residence halls and the dining hall open.

$225,000 annually eyed to aid WT development

Funds totalling as much as $225,000 per year to help finance a lobbyist in Austin, faculty development and general institutional development will be sought by West Texas

State University's new director for development. Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, new WTSU president, told The News in an exclusive interview last week he and Keith L. Winter, new director of development, are currently establishing goals for Winter's activities.

Among the top priorities are obtaining funds for a WTSU lobbyist to present the university's case in Austin during legislative sessions, a faculty development fund to finance experimental courses, workshops and perhaps even distinguished professorial chairs, and a president's fund for general university development.

Winter, whose appointment as director of development was announced last Wednesday, begins work officially Sept. 1, but he has already been on campus for lengthy conferences with Watkins.

Winter's primary job is to seek funds for the university from private sources. As additional duties, he will oversee the university's public information department and university recruiting activities.

Money, says Watkins, will be necessary for the university to innovate and experiment and develop as a strong institution. Right now, he said, many good ideas are stifled because they are faced with a lack of funding.

"We hope we can begin to develop help in faculty development fund where we can offer the faculty the opportunity to do some things we can't let them do now," he said. "If they have a project or would like to go some place or have a course that looks good, we now have no money to develop it."

Primarily the fund, he said, would be to promote faculty innovation.

He cited as examples more workshops in the summer months which bring students to the local campus, and courses which professors believe might have potential interest but which are not assured of drawing students.

Watkins said under current university finances, "we don't have that thrust. We have to take some new thrusts."

The president said he believes in addition to a faculty development fund, the university should seek what he termed a "president's institutional development fund."

The purpose of this fund, he said, would be to provide money for a lobbyist who would explain the university's needs and role to legislators in Austin.

The fund would also be used to produce materials which would project the university's image throughout the region and state.

"We can give out information now, but there's no money otherwise," he said.

This fund might also be used to raise money for construction of a new fine arts center on campus, a

Eagle standouts hurt, but expected to start

Canyon Eagle boosters will get their first look at the 1973 squad Monday night, but two of the CHS standouts won't be in the lineup.

The Eagle Booster Club is sponsoring an ice cream social beginning at 5:30 p.m. Monday on the high school field, and the Eagles are scheduled to scrimmage for about an hour for the fans.

Coach Ron Mills, who's fielding a team he says has the best attitude of any team he's ever coached, noted with chagrin last week that much-praised tackle Bob Counsellor has been injured and won't see scrimmage action. Offensive back Garre LaGrone is also injured.

Counsellor is suffering a dislocated bone in his wrist while LaGrone is limping with a sprained ankle.

"That slows us but it won't kill us," Mills said of the injuries. He expects Counsellor and LaGrone to be healthy for the Eagle opener against Spearman on Sept. 7.

But, they'll only be watching Monday night.

Eagle Boosters are preparing two score gallons of ice cream for the social Monday.

Following the Eagle scrimmage session, Mills is scheduled to introduce his 1973 squad and his coaches. Teams from the junior varsity and Canyon junior high school will also be recognized.

The Eagles halted two-a-day drills last week with the opening of the fall school term and are now practicing about two hours each day.

They scrimmaged Denver City in Lubbock Friday night. With his first outing of the season less than weeks away, Mills is optimistic.

While he's fielding a team of boys who aren't particularly hefty, he believes their quickness will more than equal the weight disadvantage.

"The team averages 158 pounds on the offensive starting team," Mills said.

And, Mills believes the team's attitude will go a long way in Friday night battle this fall.

"It has the best attitude for a team I ever had," he said.

To illustrate that fact, Mills said the team has had 17 workouts with "only one real bad day."

Mills has his practice sessions down to an art with each phase of football basics covered in each session thoroughly.

Team members workout individually, then as a unit and finally as a team.

Condition and attitude may be the key elements for the Eagles this fall as they face another season of stiff competition not only in district play but against such foes as the Caprock Longhorns, Hereford Whitefaces and other AAAA schools.

The Eagles break into the season with AAAA teams before beginning district play.

It was the schedule and the AAAA teams which proved the Eagle downfall last year in Mills' estimation.

Meeting in Sept. for residents to discuss Buff Lake future

A meeting which could help decide the future of Buffalo Lake will be held Sept. 6 in Canyon for local and area residents.

Set-up as a kind of town-hall meeting for the exchange of ideas and formulation of plans for future action on the lake, the meeting has been set by a group of local residents including Jack Brandt, president of the UMBarger Community Association, and County Judge Woody Pond.

A spokesman for the group said a recent explanation of intent by the Federal Department of Interior places the initiative for action to save Buffalo Lake in the hands of local residents.

The Department of Interior recently informed Congressman Bob Price that the department's ultimate intention is to close Buffalo Lake to all activities not related to wildlife. A department spokesman said fishing and limited hunting would be allowed, but such activities as boating, picnicking and camping would be prohibited.

Price, who has been working with locals to keep Buffalo Lake open for all types of recreational activities, further placed the burden for action on local residents in a recent letter published in The Canyon News.

Price said in the letter that if local residents can formulate a plan of action to keep the lake open he will gladly pursue the plan at the Washington level.

Petitions circulated by the UMBarger Community Association earlier this summer spurred Price to meet several times with Interior Department officials about the future of the lake, which has long been plagued by first pollution and then a lack of rainfall.

The results of those meetings were also published in The News and indicated that finances and department policy together spell the ultimate demise of the lake as an area recreational area.

A spokesman for the group which is sponsoring the Sept. 6 meeting said several questions must be considered on a local basis before Price can proceed to try to keep the lake open.

"First, we must determine if there is enough interest in this area to even justify our time and the Congressman's time in pursuing other avenues to keep the lake open," he said. "If there seems to be not enough interest, I suspect the lake will simply be closed to all but sporadic fishing and some hunting in the not-too-distant future.

The meeting will also face the question of what avenues to pursue in keeping the lake open for recreation.

Price said in his recent letter to the newspaper that the Department of Interior has contacted the State of Texas about the possibility of the state assuming some financial burden connected with the lake.

Another possibility has been posed by Judge Pond, who has said it might be feasible for Randall County to assume the re-

Sturdivant released from WTSU, officials criticize his methods

Controversial freshman running back Paul Sturdivant has been released from his letter of intent to attend West Texas State University and officials here are bitter over the entire affair.

Dr. Donald Cates, WTSU registrar, sent a letter to Sturdivant late last week informing him that he is released from his national letter of intent, a document which had bound him to attend WTSU to play football. Sturdivant had for several weeks been trying to break his letter of intent, presumably to attend Oklahoma University.

Cates sent the notification letter on the basis of a letter he received last week from Garland Godfrey, president of Central State University in Oklahoma, a school Sturdivant had attended to try to become eligible to enroll for the fall at WTSU.

"In Texas, what he's doing would be a felony," Cates declared of Godfrey's letter.

The CSU president's letter claims Sturdivant failed to complete enrollment procedures this summer at CSU and thus was not given academic credit for the hours he took there to become eligible for WTSU.

Cates says he was told earlier this summer by a CSU assistant registrar that Sturdivant's enrollment was complete and that a transcript could be sent WTSU once released by Tom Sturdivant, Paul's father.

Sturdivant's father has been trying to get his son released from the binding letter to attend WTSU since the younger Sturdivant was named most valuable player in a post-season game in Tulsa several weeks ago.

CSU President Godfrey said in his letter.

"Paul did take a class in safety education on the campus of Central State University this summer, but did not complete his admission forms and decided to take the class for audit."

"Our policy on audit is that no credit is granted and no grades given. Therefore, Paul has no record of credits at Central State University."

Cates claims he was told a transcript was on file at CSU and that he had completed the course for credit.

"I wouldn't be surprised if he's not subject to similar Oklahoma laws," Cates said.

He noted that a Texas law prohibits falsification or changing of university records.

"I have learned from several phone conversations with your father that he has no wish for you to meet admission requirements at West Texas State University."

Cates' letter tells Sturdivant, "and he has expressed the wish that you be denied admission."

"At the time I visited with your father I told him we had no choice but to consider your admissibility until we have further clarification of your status at Central State University in the form of a transcript."

Cates' letter states that Sturdivant's admission to the university here would not be "in the interest of West Texas State University, nor does it appear to be desired by you or your family."

Athletic Director Gene Mayfield, who told The News last week that if Sturdivant was able to obtain a release from his letter it would be through a lie, was disappointed in the CSU president's notification.

He said he is disappointed that he held a scholarship all summer for Sturdivant and now that scholarship is unused.

"There was never any question the intent was there on both parties to have the agreement and then to have it broken for what some college president did in Oklahoma," he said.

Hospital, WTSU short on beef

While food prices skyrocket nationally and beef becomes scarcer and scarcer, two Canyon institutional food servers said last week they are doing the best they can with what they can get.

Wes Miller, food service director at West Texas State University, and Ray Grimes, administrator of Neblett Memorial Hospital, reported they have been affected by cutbacks.

Grimes has apparently been less affected than has Miller.

"We've had no real trouble yet," Grimes said. "We've been substituting and cutting back as much as possible."

Grimes, who buys his beef from a local supplier, said the hospital is utilizing menus with meat substitutes and meat stretchers.

Miller said contracts for beef and other meat products for serving in the WTSU cafeteria are being negotiated on a day-to-day basis.

"Last week, I ordered 500 pounds of ground beef and wound up receiving only 50 pounds," he said. "It's just getting hard to find."

To combat the meat shortage and higher prices, Miller said the cafeteria will utilize more casserole and other recipes which will stretch the beef usage.

"We also will be using more poultry, pork and fish to make up for the shortage, as these meats are high in protein value," he said.

A problem facing Miller at the present is the feasibility of the ala carte line, which serves only hamburgers, cheeseburgers and other short-order items.

"The ala carte line has proved very popular with the students since it was started last year," Miller says. "We are going to keep it open just as long as we can still get the beef."

Approximately 665,000 meals are served at the East Dining Hall each year, Miller says, and to keep that many customers happy you must fix what appeals to them.

"Steaks, roast and other dishes with beef will still be served as in the past," he says. "However, students may be limited to only one extra serving on some meat dishes."

Miller says substitutes for protein foods are being found and kept in mind for possible future shortages.

"Right now, dairy products are beginning to become scarce," Miller says. "There are a lot of things you can use to replace protein foods, but what do you substitute for eggs at breakfast?" he asks.

Miller believes prices will rise quickly after the freeze on beef is lifted Sept. 12.

"We may not have much beef on our menu immediately after the freeze, because the prices probably will go skyhigh," he says. (See FOOD, Page 9)

So you thought Friday's afternoon temperature was hot enough to fry an egg, eh? It may have been, but it didn't fry this egg which was scrutinized by News reporters throughout the afternoon. Friday's temperature soared well above the 100-degree mark. No official temperature figures are kept for Canyon.

Canyon is out for day care

Canyon has been counted out of the running for federal monies to help finance a day-care center here for children of working mothers, but officials at West Texas State University have definite plans to continue to push for such a center, possibly on the campus.

Mary Lou Farnum, assistant dean of student life at WTSU, said last week Canyon has not been recommended for federal funding for a day-care center. Five other Panhandle cities will be recommended to receive partial funds — Pampa, Tulia, Perryton, Cactus and Amarillo.

The money is to be allocated through the state to the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation headquartered in Amarillo.

Recommended allocations are $15,000 to Pampa, $11,000 to Tulia, $6,000 to Perryton, $7,000 to Cactus and $11,000 to Amarillo.

"We'll pursue it here," Miss Farnum declared last week. "It has stimulated interest here and we've not stopped pursuing it."

Even with the apparent loss of federal funds to finance a day-care center, Miss Farnum believes a need is apparent here which could be filled with an on-campus facility, particularly to take care of children of university employees and students.

Right now, Miss Farnum said, she is preparing a proposal to submit to Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, new WTSU president, to have the day-care center established on campus.

"We're certainly not forgetting it," she said.

What Miss Farnum has in mind is creation of a day-care center on the campus to care for children of women employees of the university and students.

She said a survey taken earlier this summer both in Canyon and on the campus indicates the need exists on the campus rather than in town.

The survey received virtually no response from townspeople, she noted, while nearly a hundred students and employees responded indicating more than two dozen children would be available for such a service.

Miss Farnum said several other universities around the country provide such a service for their employees and students and that the establishment of the center would be a recruiting inducement as well as a morale builder for employees and students.

County Judge Woody Pond, who heads the community action corporation, had last year submitted Canyon's name on the list of cities to be considered for a day-care center.

Interest in the center here, however, was focused on the campus rather than in the city.

Housing scarce, too

With the opening of West Texas State University's fall term just a week away, Chamber of Commerce Manager Roland Black commences what is in many cases a vain effort to find housing for students, faculty members and just plain folks who want to live in Canyon this fall.

Black was not caught unaware by the upsurge of interest in obtaining rent housing in the city, but he says this summer's demand far exceeds the demand in the summer of 1972.

And, as usual, the demand far exceeds the supply of available housing here.

"Right now," he said, "we have

Our World

True Worship And Clean Living Needed

By ANN BROWN

True worship and clean living have to be combined to express pure religion. Right living is seldom found apart from true worship.

Worship without righteousness is hypocrisy. Righteousness without worship has to be self righteousness. Which is less admirable?

The only way we can express love is by conforming to the desires of the ones we love.

The new baby needs to be kept warm, dry, fed, and comfortable. That is usually all he wants.

When one's desires become exorbitant or unreasonable, love is frustrated for both lover and beloved.

So the key to harmonious relationships is agreeing as to what is right. A common criterion for right and wrong will solve no problems, however, unless the principals involved are willing to DO what is right.

There have always been people who hated good and loved evil. Micah complained about them nearly 3000 years ago (Micah 3:1-2).

There was a time, however, when evil men had the grace to be ashamed of their conduct.

No more.

Ingrid Bergman was "banished" 25 years ago because of an illicit affair. Now movie stars boast of their illegitimate offspring.

Homosexuals, and the people flocking to the "churches" of Satan that are springing up across our Country flaunt their love of evil.

The State has established "Birthright" or "Planned Parenthood" clinics nationwide to teach "sexually active" young people to cope with venereal disease and pregnancy. But moral responsibility is not to be taught—not even in our schools, which are already established.

This gives public approval to evil behavior. The State encourages it, and the taxpayers support it (however unwilling they may be).

We express love for our parents by respectful obedience. We show love for our heavenly Father the same way.

We are all willing to obey the rules that please us. But remind the typical Christian woman that God commands her to respect and obey her husband, and she will likely explode.

Professing Christians are seldom much different from anyone else when it comes to their "rights." They may be willing to obey God as long as they don't have to sacrifice any rights. Every motorist driving down the highway has a perfect right to his side of the road. Holding out for his rights, however, may not be the best way to reach his destination alive.

The greatest desire of the normal human being is a happy home situation. Parents frequently have to sacrifice many of their rights to provide a happy home for their children.

Lonely youngsters by the thousands are holed up in hippie communes in a desperate search for a home.

The tragic slaughter of all those boys in Houston was made possible because more than 5000 youngsters are reported missing every year in Houston. As a rule they just ran away from home.

Is Houston different from other cities? How many unhappy, frightened children are wandering the earth because the parents failed in their responsibility of providing a home filled with love and emotional security. A happy home pays greater dividends than any other investment. Yet many people invest more time and effort in their work, houses, automobiles, and even clothes than they do their greatest treasure: the family.

It's not a house or furniture that makes a home; it's the people in it. (Ask any widow who is left alone with a big house full of furniture).

Perhaps only a third of Americans are guilty of dissolving their marriages on a personal basis. All of us, however, are guilty on a national basis: by making and upholding laws which destroy homes, and contributing to and condoning the situation.

Americans have probably built better houses and poorer homes than any people on earth.

If true worship and right living are not taught in the home, they are not likely to be taught at all. Our nation is suffering from a dearth of pure religion, but who is paying the greatest price? Our children.

By CARROLL WILSON

Rep. Bob Price has apparently adopted the attitude that Americans have gotten what they asked for in a President, in an economy, and in a country and now they must live with it without complaint.

"It's your fault so I don't want to hear any belly-aching," is more-or-less the crux of what he told a small audience in Canyon last week.

The American housewife, who wants her cake and a big bite, too, must simply live with high prices and somehow get by.

You may not like Watergate, but you voted the man into office would be an extension of Price's thinking.

This type thinking indicates quite a turn-around for our congressman when placed alongside his rhetoric of a year ago when a campaign for reelection was in full swing.

At that time, the villains were big government, bureaucrats and Democrats.

Now, when Price speaks, he sounds more like a high school principal counselling us voters on the root causes of trouble in America. He throws in a little preaching now and then and tut-tuts the lack of participation in the nation's churches and the lack of parental discipline with children.

The country's morals are going to hell and if there's something wrong with government just point your finger at yourself, Price implies.

Now, there may be something directly wrong with the country's moral fiber, we may be a corrupt society and our government may be only a reflection of some deeper sickness.

But, if that's so, I think Price is enough of a politician to realize that kind of talk ain't going to cut it when people start thinking about who they want to elect to his seat next year.

It reeks too much of a poor excuse.

It's simply too simple for Price to stand back philosophically with his hand to his chin and say the country is going to the dogs, while doing nothing about it except pointing it out for digestion.

While Price can't legislate morals (or shouldn't), he can watch out for our interests and he can be disgusted, as we are, by skulduggery involving the White House.

To say that Watergate is an overt symbol of our times, is to shun responsibility, duck the issue and back off from the legitimate kind of disgust that is spawned by moral indignation.

It's an easy way out, an easy way not to face responsibility, an easy way to wash one's hands of the situation and claim one's inability to change the mess of the world.

If there is something wrong with the moral fiber of this country, it will continue only to degenerate unless men of moral fiber substitute action for empty words and straighten us out from the top.

West Texas State University information director Jack Donovan sent out an interesting note this last week:

"General faculty meetings at WTSU are open to the news media," it said.

Now, that's a switcheroo for you.

Not-so-fondly do I remember last spring when I was denied entrance to the news media.

Mission Study Tour

Pastor and Mrs. Marcus L. Adair of Faith Chapel departed from the Amarillo Air Terminal last Monday, August 20th for the flight to Mexico City from which they will conduct a mission-study tour of the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico.

The Adairs will be able to visit and view Uxmal, seat of Maya Xiu Dynasty with the palace and religious sanctuaries. They will travel through the Yucatan Forest into the seldom visited Mayan sanctuaries of Sayil, Xlapak, Labna, and Kabah. This area is today the Mecca of America's greatest civilization for exploration of the northern Archeological Zone.

The Adairs will depart from the Yucatan Peninsula for New Orleans, August 27th and arrive back in Amarillo, August 28th at 7 p.m. Pastor Adair will be conducting an evening service at Faith Chapel the 5th of September at which time he will review this mission-study tour with slides and personal reports for the possible outreach and involvement of Faith Chapel and Faith Bible Education Center.

City Can't Aid In Bell Increases

If you're one of those Canyon residents with an unlisted telephone number and your monthly charge for that service has been increased, don't bother going to city hall to complain.

City Manager George Louderer said a rate increase on unlisted telephone numbers, which is to go into effect here as of Sept. 3, is beyond the city's franchise agreement with Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The city, he said, has no control over fees charged for services performed by Southwestern Bell outside of the basic rate.

Bell customers who have unlisted phone numbers were notified recently the rate for that service would be a $1 charge effective next week.

In a letter to those customers, Rites Slated

Mrs. Tom Stith passed away at her home in Tulia, Sunday, Aug. 19.

Services were at the Wallace Funeral Home and burial was at Rose Hill Cemetery of Tulia, at 10 a.m., with Rev. Carl Nawn of the First Methodist Church of Tulia presiding.

Mrs. Stith was 84 years old, had lived in Tulia since 1915, and was a member in longest standing of the First Methodist Church of Tulia.

Sister of the deceased is Mrs. Irene Ball of Canyon.

Mike Patrick, area manager, said providing the unlisted number service is more expensive than normal listed service.

"Our operators must spend additional time in handling directory assistance calls and maintaining separate lists of restricted numbers in order to protect your privacy," Patrick's letter states.

Fellowships Available

Danforth Foundation graduate fellowship competition for women has been announced by Dr. David Wheeler, dean of the graduate school at West Texas State University.

Dr. Wheeler said the competition is designed to find and develop college and secondary school teachers "among that group of American women whose preparation for teaching has been postponed or interrupted."

The fellowships are intended for women who no longer qualify for more conventional fellowship programs or whose candidacy in such programs might be given a low priority, he said.

Appointment for the fellowships is for one-year duration. Application materials and other information are available at Dr. Wheeler's office on campus.

Letters To The Editor Reader Thanks News For 'Digs' Feature

Dear Troy,

I would like to thank you and Ann Melin for the excellent article covering the Wedel dig on the Currie ranch. The Curries, too, deserve a word of thanks for their cooperation and assistance in sponsoring a scientific, professional archeological excavation in the historically rich Panhandle. Perhaps Ann Melin deserves more than thanks, though: she displayed energy and intrepidity beyond the call of journalistic duty by merely climbing down to and out of the site area, lugging her heavy camera.

However, I must offer a minor correction, one which might clear my name with some friends who share my concern for environmental and wildlife protection. The snakes we killed at the site were of the buzztail ("coontail," in local terms) variety, not harmless and beneficial water snakes as reported. One of those rattlers seriously threatened the life of Mrs. Wedel by crawling unnoticed alongside her leg. The other was unexpectedly discovered in the creekbed just a few feet from our excavations. Aside from the buzztails, we and our volunteer diggers (and thanks to them, too) did no harm to either the local wildlife or greenery. Judging from the vast amount of pop-tops, cans, bottles, tinfoil, plastic, and ad nauseum I have found littering other archeological and scenic sites, archeologists and cultural anthropologists of, say, the thirtieth century are going to arrive at a very misleading (or would it be accurate?) picture of our present social age.

Enough proselytizing. Thanks for the promotion of serious, scientific archeology. In view of the appalling amount of actual and threatened destruction of Panhandle archeological sites by pot-hunters, land developers, et al, those of us interested and involved in scientific archeology need all the help we can get. Let's hope that the historical wealth of the Panhandle can be thoroughly and accurately uncovered and studied while there are reasonably undamaged sites left. And in case you were sipping your coffee and missed that pun, here's another one more to the point: dams be damned!

Sincerely,
Jim Couzourt

P.S.: Thanks, also, for your help with the WT literary magazine. But don't ask me what happened to all our plans and work. The last word I had about it is the same word that is gumming up the works in our area archeological recovery projects: money.

Man Injured In Fracas

A 54-year-old Amarillo man was hospitalized late Friday suffering from injuries received in a fracas earlier that night on a dirt road eight miles east of Canyon. Oscar Jarman was initially treated at Neblett Hospital here and then taken to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Amarillo where he underwent surgery Friday night. He was listed in fair condition.

Two other men were jailed Friday as a result of the incident. They are William Glynn Boone, 43, of Hale Center, and Haskell Lee Jackson, 52, of Amarillo.

A fold-up Bowie-type knife was found in the clothing of Jarman at the Amarillo hospital. The two were arrested by Department of Public Safety officers about 6:30 p.m. Friday as they drove toward Canyon on State 217.

No charges had been filed as of Saturday morning.

Mrs. Ronnie Russell
nee Gerrie Brockman

Nuptials Performed

Miss Gerrie Brockman became the bride of Ronnie Russell in a double ring ceremony Aug. 25, at 3 p.m., held at St. Ann's Catholic Church with Father Jack Gist officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Brockman of Nazareth are parents of the bride.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ross Russell of Canyon.

Special selections, The Twelfth of Never, The Wedding Prayer, and The Lord's Prayer were sung by Miss Armetha Lindley, Canyon, with Mrs. Betty Williams, Canyon, as organist.

Miss Debbie Bray, Canyon, was maid of honor and Miss Kathy Brockman, sister of the bride, Nazareth, was bridesmaid. They wore long gowns of yellow dotted swiss with empire waists and carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies.

Andy Sherrod, Canyon, was best man and Steve Russell, brother of the groom, Canyon, served as groomsman.

Larry Gaston, Wellington, was usher.

Given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Brockman, the bride wore a formal gown of Belgian lace with an empire waist banded with white satin ribbon. The bodice front was enhanced by pleated lace ruffles with re-embroidered scallops and a pleated lace ruffle accented the neckline. Long tapered sleeves of sheer lace trimmed with deep lace ruffles with pleated lace borders complimented the gown. The straight, gathered skirt ended in a deep hemline of six rows of lace. Her elbow length veil of silk illusion was attached to a heavy lace Juliet cap of pearls and lace medallions with a wide, organza, looped bow across the back accenting the veil attachment.

A dinner reception of German sausage and trimmings followed the ceremony.

For a wedding trip to Lubbock, the bride chose a pink pants suit trimmed in red.

The couple will be at home after Aug. 26, at 203 28th St., Apt. #1, Canyon.

The bride is a senior student at West Texas State University majoring in Elementary Education and plans to graduate in May 1974.

The groom is a graduate of West Texas State University with a BS degree in math and is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Ceremony Unites Berry-Longworth

Miss Kristy Ann Berry and Glenn Alan Longworth were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed by Father Jim Bethell of the Episcopal Student Center, Aug. 25, 7 p.m. at the United Campus Ministry.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Berry, Midland, are the parents of the bride.

The groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Donald Longworth, Lubbock.

Soloist Debbie Kenny, sang One Hand, One Heart and The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face, with Brenda Pearce as organist.

The altar was decorated with an arrangement of pastel flowers centered with a memory candle, flanked on either side by similar arrangements on white pedestals.

Maid of honor was Bettie Boydston, wearing a pastel pink gown of dotted swiss with scooped neckline accented by full and over the shoulder ruffles, and a pink picture hat with pink flowers hanging from the back. Cheryl Berry, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing an identical dress to the maid's of honor in yellow with a matching hat. Donna Berry, sister of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a dress similar to that of the attendants in pastel green, with a headpiece of matching flowers, and carrying a basket of pastel flowers. The maid of honor and bridesmaid carried nosegay bouquets of pastel flowers.

Bruce Taylor, Quanah, was best man, with Harvey Coughney, Amarillo, as groomsman. Serving as usher was Frank Berry, Canyon, brother of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight crepe with a high waist accented by a crepe bow, with a scoop neckline and bodice and sleeves covered with re-embroidered Guipure lace. The bodice front and cuffs were enhanced by tiny self buttons. Her veil of layers of French illusion cascaded from a lace-Juliet cap to shoulder length. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

A dinner reception at the Amarillo Country Club followed the ceremony.

For a wedding trip, the bride chose a green pastel pantsuit with white accessories.

The couple will be at home after Aug. 27, in Pampa.

The bride attends West Texas State University and is a candidate for graduation Dec., 1973.

The groom is a May, 1973 graduate of West Texas State University with a BBA degree.

Ceremony For Moreland-Bryan

Miss Aprilia Moreland and John Manly Bryan, Jr., were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony Aug. 25, 5:30 p.m. at Joseph A. Hill Memorial Chapel on the West Texas State University campus with Rev. Baldwin J. Stribling, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim D. Moreland, of Amarillo, are the parents of the bride.

The groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. J. Manly Bryan, Sr., 2 Bramblewood Lane.

2 More Cadets Back From Camp

Two more Canyon cadets in ROTC have returned from training at Fort Riley, Kan., this summer.

They are Stanley J. Ebeling and Gary V. Nesmith.

Both are students at West Texas State University and were among 7200 students attending Army ROTC training at five installations in the country this summer.

The ROTC advanced camp provides an opportunity for cadets to develop and demonstrate leadership capabilities in a field training environment. The instruction supplements theories and concepts which cadets learned in the classroom on campus.

Cadets normally attend the training during the summer between their junior and senior college years.

Cadet Ebeling and his wife, Karen, live at 2110 Seventh Ave. Cadet Nesmith and his wife, Beverly, live at 2604 Sixth St.

The savings and loan industry in the Texas Panhandle is going to college this fall with an educational program tailored to its needs.

The program, only the third of its kind in Texas, is a cooperative effort of Panhandle Chapter 189 of the U.S. Savings & Loan League and West Texas State University School of Business.

The initial offering, Business Administration 110-5, will be to acquaint new personnel of the various savings and loan associations taking the course with the industry and task-related training, said Wayne Cameron, a member of the Board of Governors of the Panhandle chapter.

Cameron, assistant vice president of the Panhandle Savings and Loan Association of Amarillo, said the purpose of the program is so "students become better acquainted with the savings and loan industry much as they do banking."

He said the offering this fall will be attended primarily by employees of savings and loan associations although college students desiring to learn more about the industry can enroll.

The course will carry three semester hours of undergraduate credit. It will be offered Tuesday nights, beginning August 28, from 7 to 9:40. No prerequisite courses are required, he added.

Cameron said more than 50 employees of seven savings and loan associations have signed up for the course. A number of students enrolled in the School of Business have indicated a desire to take the course, he added.

"Each employer will pay his own employees' tuition," Cameron said.

Associations participating in the program, Cameron said, include: First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Amarillo, Imperial Savings of Amarillo, Panhandle Savings & Loan Association of Amarillo, Canyon - Pampa, Security Federal Savings & Loan Association of Childress, First Savings & Loan Association of Borger and North Plains Savings & Loan Association of Dumas.

Other associations in the Panhandle chapter are Dalhart Federal Savings & Loan, Plainview Savings Association, Hale County Savings & Loan, Plainview, Tulia Savings & Loan, High Plains Savings of Hereford and Perryton Savings & Loan.

In 1922 the American Savings & Loan League was founded to provide multilevel professional education and training programs for industry personnel involved in both operations and management functions.

The league is the national trade organization serving the savings association business. The league said its 4,800 member associations represent 98 percent of all assets held by associations.

The institute has a 10-level pyramid of educational programs starting with an orientation course and ranging up to graduate school, advanced management and financial management programs. The top level programs currently are available only at such institutions as the University of Chicago, Indiana University, University of Southern California, University of Oklahoma and University of Washington.

Cameron said it is also planned for West Texas State to offer the second level of programs — Diploma I, II and III — which is for operating personnel.

He said only the University of Texas and East Texas State University, of colleges in Texas, now offer the first two steps of the pyramid.

Virginia Carver of Security Federal Savings & Loan, a member of the chapter Board of Governors, said, "Women are predominate in employment in the industry and some of them already have college credit."

Panhandle chapter president, Dwight Turner of First Federal Savings & Loan, said the industry's educational programs are fourfold to help personnel obtain: "Specific knowledge needed for a basic understanding of the nature, purposes and characteristics of savings associations in the American economy.

"Basic operational knowledge, skills and attitudes needed for the efficient function of various departments in a savings association."

"Supervisory skills and abilities needed for effective supervision."

"Motivation to continue to learn in order to make the maximum contribution to the future progress of the savings association of which they are a part."

R.E. Hayes, executive vice president and manager of First Federal Savings & Loan, said, "These new courses are further examples of the continuing effort at West Texas State to meet the needs of this area."

He added that "because of the lack of courses (in the past) on the subject, we've usually had to train our new people in the technicalities of the savings and loan business. We look forward to acquiring people with a solid background in our business."

Fed Grant Given WT For Law

A $4,500 grant has been awarded West Texas State University under the federal Law Enforcement Education Program for fiscal 1974.

The grant was made by the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

David J. Dehlin of Dallas, regional administrator, said the university was approved for a $10,000 grant, subject to availability of funds.

Clifford Baker, director of the WTSU student financial aid office, said the funds will be allocated to law enforcement personnel seeking a degree.

Individual grants will cover tuition, fees and books, he said.

Applications for such grants should be made to Baker, Box 787, W.T. Station, Canyon 79016.

Under the Law Enforcement Education Program, Baker said, an applicant for funds must agree to remain with his present employer for two years.

TEXAS Put To Bed After Saturday Show

As the last sellout crowd of the season trickled out of the Pioneer Amphitheatre Saturday night, an exuberant "TEXAS" cast and crew of over 100 got busy pushing brooms, dismantling lights, folding sets and checking in costumes.

It may have looked like just plain work, but longtime tradition transformed it into what show biz folk call a "strike party" at which actors and crew get to work off leftover energy as well as bid their farewells to fellow company members.

As "TEXAS" goes into its winter hibernation, publicity manager Margaret Harper estimated that more than 85,000 people attended this year's performance, raising the total attendance in the show's eight-year run to 585,000.

All in all, she said it was a highly successful season. The show was rained out only twice, bringing the total number of rain-outs in eight years to eleven.

On five other evenings this summer, she said, the audience waited patiently for short rains to stop, and the show was able to proceed except for one occasion when only the first act was presented.

Mrs. Harper's figures show that the production is still drawing people from distant points. In a representative survey taken on Aug. 2, 36 percent of the audience lived over 500 miles away, and 37 per cent resided in the Panhandle. The remainder traveled from 100 to 500 miles each way to see the musical saga of Panhandle history.

A trip out to the Palo Duro Canyon to see "TEXAS" has in eight years time become a near-ritual for many, and for the talented young performers in the area, a summer stint in the show has become the jumping-off place for professional careers in theatre.

Gifted young men like technical director Nick Reid have started out as ushers or stage hands and risen up in the ranks.

One of the most outstanding rises was that of Cindy Newman, who began her "TEXAS" career on the hospitality team, and this year stepped into the shoes of the leading lady of the piece.

All of the company pitch in at the conclusion of each season to give the theatre area a thorough cleaning, Reid said.

With a spirited work squad assigned to various areas in the theatre, the cleanup was executed swiftly in about two to three hours after the grand finale of the show at about 11:15 p.m. Saturday.

Unlike many closing shows, sets are not torn up, but stored for another season. Most of the stage effects are stored in the large shop behind the stage.

During the winter season the theatre draws an unwelcome crowd of rats, Reid said, and poison has to be laid out periodically during winter months to stave off the influx.

Animals in the show are returned to the stable along with harnesses and other riding gear.

Turning out the lights isn't as easy as it sounds, since crew members must climb up the canyon wall to dismantle some of them.

Along with makeup, costumes were checked in and a detailed inventory taken of all the petticoats, bonnets, stetsons and levis. Costume mistresses began laundering the costumes Saturday, and will return to the theatre this week to complete the washing.

Although the mood of the company was festive, some tearful partings among cast members occurred. It was the second time that the show folk were bidding their final adieu to Reid. Two years ago he thought he was saying goodbye for good when he left for Tucson to attend the University of Arizona. He returned, however, to assume technical direction of the show.

This year, Reid leaves to assume duties as set designer and paint supervisor in the drama department of California State University at San Diego.

Some performers have already begun their fall jobs and at the same time spent their evenings in the show.

Several cast members are teaching in public schools in the area. Vicki McCormick, who portrays Kate Lucas in the show, has been commuting nightly from Plainview, where she is teaching classes.

The wide dispersion of actors after the close of the show has frustrated past attempts to offer other entertainment fare in the amphitheatre during the fall.

The crisp fall weather that doesn't keep spectators out of the football stands, seems to keep away audiences for theatrical performance, Reid said.

WT Runners Report Today

West Texas State University's cross country team reports this afternoon to open practice sessions leading up to the opening meet of the season Sept. 20 in Plainview.

Coach Bob Kitchens returns only two lettermen from last year's team. There are two other upperclassmen and four freshmen slated to report.

Kitchens will test the condition of the team by running the athletes over a two-mile course near the campus this afternoon.

The returning members are sophomores Larry Lane of Buffalo, N.Y., and Lindsey Snodgrass of Dell City, Lane placed 11th in the Missouri Valley Conference cross country meet last fall, but has been slowed with several leg injuries since that time.

Gary Keim, junior middle-distance runner from Perryton, was on the squad last fall, but didn't run because of injuries. Percy Mays, Hereford junior, is returning after a two-year layoff. He worked last year as a staff member for Campus Crusade for Christ.

The freshmen are Dave Karila from Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada, Jay Jones from Floydada, Jim Henson from Hereford and Steve Williams from Canyon.

Kitchens' Buffaloes open their season Sept. 20 with a four-mile race in Plainview at the Wayland Baptist College Invitational. Other teams entered in that meet are Abilene Christian College, Texas Tech and Lubbock Christian College.

The Buffaloes compete Sept. 27 in the Lubbock Christian College Invitational and Oct. 6 at the Oklahoma State University Jamboree in Stillwater, Okla.

The five-mile Eastern New Mexico University Invitational in Portales, N.M., is scheduled for Oct. 13.

The Buffaloes host their own invitational, a four-mile event, Oct. 20. That day is homecoming at West Texas State University.

Texas Tech's Invitational is Oct. 27 at Lubbock and the season ends Nov. 3 in Des Moines, Iowa, with the Missouri Valley Conference meet.

Mayfield Pleased With His Buffaloes

Coach Gene Mayfield was fairly pleased with the opening week of football practice by his West Texas State University Buffaloes.

The Buffaloes opened practice Monday and worked through Wednesday without pads. The first three days of two-a-day sessions were mainly for general conditioning.

The Buffaloes put on their pads for hitting sessions Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Saturday's practices were divided into three sessions. The Buffaloes worked Saturday morning in pads. An afternoon session was in shorts and Mayfield sent his charges through their first scrimmage Saturday night at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

"The players put out pretty good effort on both offense and defense," said Mayfield. "Because of the high temperatures during the latter part of the week, the latter part of the afternoon practices were not as sharp as they could have been."

The Buffaloes got through the first week of practice with only minor injuries. Split end Mike Lozano was injured this past summer on his job and was held out of contact and running drills because of a bruised thigh. Fullback Clois Burgess bruised a thigh Wednesday afternoon and was held out of contact work for the remainder of the week. Split end Tracy Dickson was slowed with a sore throat.

The Buffs will continue their two-a-day drills through this week, taking time out to register Friday and Saturday. A scrimmage session is scheduled for Frank Kimbrough Stadium at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

West Texas State opens its season at home Sept. 8 against Missouri Valley Conference rival Drake. The Buffaloes tied with Drake and Louisville for the conference championship last fall.

Drake opens its season Sept. 1 by hosting New Mexico State University in another conference battle.

The home opener could well draw a large crowd, not only because of a record number of season tickets sold (near 4,200), but because of a ticket promotion between West Texas State and Affiliated Foods, Inc.

There are 60 Affiliated Food stores in the Panhandle area selling $1 coupons for each three dollars worth of groceries purchased. Each of those coupons will be exchanged at any ticket booth on the night of the Drake game for a $5 reserved seat ticket.

WTSU Opens Doors For Fall At Weekend

West Texas State University opens its doors for its 64th year this week when a new fall term begins and officials are still hesitant to speculate on how many students will sign up for courses.

Students will begin moving onto the local campus Tuesday when the resident halls and the dining hall open.

About 600 beginning freshmen attended three orientation sessions this summer and registered at that time for the term.

Dr. Donald Cates, university registrar, while he would not speculate on the number of students expected, did say the number of freshmen anticipated is equal to the number who enrolled last fall.

Cates said since enrollment at the university reached a peak of nearly 8000 in 1969, beginning freshman enrollment has continued to decline.

It appears that freshman enrollment will reverse that trend this year and at least continue at a level consistent with last fall, he said.

Two days of registration begins Friday with freshmen and seniors scheduled to sign up from 8 a.m. to 1:20 p.m. Sophomores, juniors and graduate students will register from 1:20 p.m. to 4:20 p.m. Friday and from 8:20 to 10:40 a.m. Saturday. Evening-only and late arrivals will register until 1:20 p.m. Saturday.

Orientation for freshmen who did not attend any of the summer sessions will be in the Activities Center at 10 a.m. Thursday. University officials will meet with these students and introduce them to campus life and regulations.

Classes begin Sept. 3 and continue through Dec. 20 when the fall term ends. School will be out for Thanksgiving recess Nov. 21-24.

Because of unusually severe weather last winter which slowed construction, the new science building and the James P. and Mary Elizabeth Cornette Library will not be ready for occupancy until the start of the spring semester in January, according to Virgil Henson, financial vice president.

The Student Activities Council has scheduled two open-air concerts Friday and Saturday. They will feature vocalist Mike Williams and The Trend, a seven-man, one-girl concert rock group.

The WTSU Panhellenic Council has set rush week for sororities for Sept. 3-8. Greek orientation will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 3 in the Activities Center Ballroom.

"All women who are interested in going through rush, whether they have pre-registered or not, must attend the Greek orientation to be eligible," said Mary Lou Farnum, assistant dean of women and Panhellenic Council advisor.

Mrs. B.B. Grimes, vice president of collegiate chapters for Delta Delta Delta national social sorority, will be the principal speaker at the orientation.

An Interfraternity Council smoker is also scheduled for Sept. 3 in the Activities Center. The meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m., kicks off the fraternity rush which is set to last four weeks.

'Passing of Ring' Tuesday At WTSU

The "passing of the ring," a tradition begun by the first president of West Texas State University 55 years ago, will mark the conclusion of a change in the present WTSU administration Tuesday.

The event, occurring only twice before in the university's 64-year history, will take place during the first faculty meeting of the new school year at 9 a.m. in the Activities Center Ballroom on the Canyon campus.

At that time, Dr. James P. Cornette, president for 25 years and now chancellor, will present to incoming President Lloyd I. Watkins a plain gold band.

The public is invited for the ceremony.

Dr. Cornette said the tradition was started in 1918 when R.B. Cousins, first president of the university, bought a gold ring and placed it on the finger of his successor, Dr. Joseph A. Hill.

"Cousins decreed it to be the official ring to be passed on to succeeding presidents," Dr. Cornette said.

In a ceremony July 7, 1948, Dr. Hill, president for 30 years, in turn placed it on the finger of Dr. Cornette.

In his book "More than Brick and Mortar," a history of the university, Dr. Hill wrote that he reminded Dr. Cornette "the solid, unending and enduring values of this band of gold symbolize the high intellectual, moral, and spiritual qualities that inhere in the soul of the institution."

Dr. Hill said the president "should wear this ring in full consciousness always of its lofty symbolism, remembering that the institution is indeed 'more than brick and mortar.'"

Dr. Cornette said he has worn the ring almost continuously for the last quarter of a century.

Tuesday's meeting will also be Dr. Watkins' first opportunity to meet with the entire teaching faculty since taking over as president Aug. 1. He will give his charge to the faculty and administration at that time.

Prof's Article Published

Dr. Peter Petersen, assistant professor of history at West Texas State University, recently had an article entitled "Edwin T. Meredith: Iowa's Other Secretary of Agriculture" published in the Iowan, a quarterly magazine.

Petersen, whose doctoral dissertation was on the life and works of President Woodrow Wilson's secretary of agriculture, says that through his writings of Meredith, he wants to call attention to the achievements and innovations the man developed in the field of agriculture.

"Meredith's brief term as head of the Department of Agriculture should not be dismissed as an insignificant one. The period 1920-1921 was a time when the 'golden age' of farming was giving way to an era of perplexing problems, unmarketable surpluses, and adversity for much of rural America," Petersen wrote.

ROTC Courses To Be Offered At AC By University Faculty

Two West Texas State University courses will be taught on the Amarillo College campus this fall, heralding what could be a new era of cooperation between the two schools.

The courses will be military science courses offered by the cadre of the WTSU Army ROTC unit. WTSU ROTC faculty members will travel to the AC campus in the heart of Amarillo to teach the courses.

Dr. Kenneth Laycock, WTSU vice president for planning and development, announced an agreement between AC and WTSU had been reached late last week on the course offering.

Laycock indicated the ROTC course offerings could just be the first of several cooperative efforts toward which the Canyon university has been working for several years.

"For the last six years, we've been working on a cooperative program with them," he said. "I think this is a turning in that direction."

Lt. Col. John Childs, who has worked for three years on surveys and other material to determine whether ROTC offerings at AC was feasible, was enthusiastic about the cooperative venture.

"It will benefit both AC and WTSU," he said.

Childs said a survey was made of AC students and Amarillo high school students to determine if there would be enough interest among students to offer ROTC courses for credit on the AC campus.

"It wasn't an overwhelming response," he admitted, "but there hasn't been an overwhelming response to ROTC since the draft ended last year."

Childs credited Laycock and university vice presidents Dr. Ray Malzahn and Virgil Henson for their efforts in bringing about the cooperation.

Camp Fire Girls To Present

First Program Sept. 5 In Member Drive

The Camp Fire Girls will kick off their membership drive in Canyon Sept. 5, at an assembly to be held at Canyon Junior High School at 3 p.m. and then on Sept. 12, at Rex Reeves Elementary at 8:15 a.m. All interested parents are invited to attend the assemblies.

Camp Fire Girls include girls from the 1st grade through the 12th grade in their membership. Bluebirds are 1st - 3rd grade, Adventure is 4th - 6th grade, Discovery is 7th - 9th grade and Horizon Club is 10th - 12th grade.

At the present time, there are several groups of Camp Fire Girls in Canyon. They would like to expand their membership and leadership. They have leaders now, but need more.

Camp Fire Girls believe in individual development for each girl.

The usual maximum in a group is 12, as this keeps them from being massed together, and allows them more freedom within the group.

One of the biggest advantages of Camp Fire Girls is that the programs are frequently updated to keep pace with the trends.

The main philosophy of Camp Fire Girls is learning through doing. The girls are given broad guidelines to maintain but may move freely within them.

A girl does not have to start out in Camp Fire Girls in the 1st grade to be a member. She may apply for membership at any time she is of an age included in the divisions.

For further information and applications, call The Camp Fire Girls office at 373-7922, or go by 2211 Line Ave., Amarillo.

Housing . . .

a big demand for two and three bedroom houses for people moving into Canyon.

He noted that he has a long waiting list of persons seeking housing here, primarily in rent houses.

The majority of Black's summer requests come from students who plan to enroll for the fall term at WTSU. Many of them are seeking apartments but an increasing number wants houses.

"I think there are still some apartments available," Black said. "But, there aren't any houses."

Black said he's found houses for many persons this summer.

"We've had more demand than last year," he said. "It looks like enrollment is going to be up if this is a barometer for it."

Many families have also come to Black's office seeking rent housing.

For example, Black worked for more than a month to find one family a house to rent.

"A lot of people haven't got located yet and I expect a lot more students to come in," he said.

While new housing construction is booming in the city, there is only a finite number of rental units, Black noted. And, many persons come to Canyon without knowing whether they will stay permanently. Many live in a rental unit for as much as a year before deciding to buy a home.

Going somewhere? Or been? The Canyon News wants to know about it--an so do its readers.

Food . . .

"But after they drop, we should be back in business just as before. We're not going to short-change anybody."

Students returning to WTSU for the fall or entering as freshmen will pay essentially the same for meals in the dining hall as they did a year ago in spite of the shortage and high prices.

Miller noted that the university set meal prices for 1973-74 meal tickets at about the same level they were set last year.

Regents approved a $3 per month increase, but that covers a Sunday night meal not served in the past. Campus residents are required to purchase meal tickets and may select one of several meal plans, with prices ranging from $196 to $224 per semester.

Government Tightening Rules On Programs

The government is tightening its regulations on federally assisted loan programs, but a student who wants to go to college badly enough can still make it, a West Texas State University official says.

"The move on the part of the U.S. Office of Education is to eliminate the tendency of some to abuse the loan policy that was pretty liberal up to now," says Clifford Baker, director of student financial aids.

"We have seen several cases in the government-insured loan field of students borrowing more money than they need to make payments on fancy cars, invest, or in general squander the money," he says.

"Unfortunately, this new regulation hits hardest at students on the financial borderline," he adds. "Those who come from a family of five with a total income of $10,000 or more annually are going to find it more difficult to get government-insured loans."

Previously the program was available to those in family income brackets under $15,000 a year.

Baker says the government has published seven exceptions to the regulations governing the loan program. In general, he says, they account for unexpected financial difficulties in a student's household.

One exception permits a banker to consult a college loan officer to determine a student's eligibility for a loan and decide on his own whether to grant it.

Provided the potential student has either enrolled or is going to enroll, the banker has three options.

He can loan the student money for his education but require the borrower to pay the seven per cent interest on the loan annually. The full amount comes due when he terminates his studies.

Or, the banker can apply for a federally insured loan where the government pays the interest. The third method is the conventional loan route.

Baker says bankers are not participating to any large degree in the loan program, but "if someone wants to go to college badly enough all he has to do is come see me. We'll find a way."
